

Church of Our Saviour

Dear Friends,

A change of seasons brings with it a change in orientation; autumn is rather different from summer, as the cooling weather moves us to a more contemplative place. Autumn possesses a strange poignancy, as the earth robes itself in gold and red while drawing to the edge of winter's death. The events of our lives follow similar patterns. Mary Oliver, in her poem 'A Certain Sharpness in the Morning,' puts it best:

It's true, isn't it,
in our world,
that the petals pooled with nectar, and the polished thorns are a single thing-that even the purest light, lacking the robe of darkness, would be without expression-that love itself, without pain, would be no more than a shrug gable comfort.

This season that offers us All Saints' as well as Advent is one that invites us to deepen our sense of ourselves and our spirituality. As the seasons- weather and liturgical- change, may we find within them an invitation to a new way of thinking and being.

In Christ,

Melinda
